U. S. NOT TO INSIST ON DRASTIC TERMS OF RAIL INJUNCTION

BAN ON FREE SPEECH LIFTED FROM RAILWAY INJUNCTION. DAUGHERTY INFORMS BORAH

Attorney General Lets It Be Known After a Conference With Senator That Drastic Features Will Be Dropped.

Petition Filed in Washington Court by Electrical Union to Enjoin Rail Injunction—First Labor Move in Fight.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Attorney General Daugherty sent for Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, Chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, today and after a conference regarding the Chicago injunction issued against the striking railway shop men, it was indicated the Government would not insist, in next Monday's hearing on the permanent injunction, on the provisions alleged to curb freedom of speech.

Senator Borah was said to have expressed the view that the permanent injunction should be so framed as not to be susceptible to the interpretation now placed upon the temporary order.

The strike situation throughout the country is improving steadily, Attorney General Daugherty declared.

Within the last few days, he said, approximately 200 United States marshals, sworn in as emergency Federal officers, have been laid off and apparently every one is settling down. He expressed the view that "everything would come out all right."

Mr. Daugherty said he was preparing to be in Chicago on Monday, when the injunction against the striking railway workers is to be heard, but added he did not know whether or not he could leave Washington.

LABOR PETITIONS COURT TO ENJOIN RAIL INJUNCTION

Action Begun in Capital to Render Daugherty Writ Useless.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—A petition for an injunction was filed today in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia against United States Attorney Peyton Gordon and United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder, Marshal for the District of Columbia, by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, James P. Noonan, President, and Charles P. Ford, Secretary, which would restrain Gordon and Snyder from enforcing within the District of Columbia the provisions of the blanket injunction issued to Attorney General Daugherty in Chicago last week.

The petition specifically asks that the injunction prevent the Government from interfering with the use of the funds of the Electrical Workers' Union to pay strike benefits.

The plaintiffs state that neither before nor since the first day of July, this year, have they committed any unlawful acts incident to the strike of railway shopmen.

The Brotherhood and President Noonan were named in Attorney General Daugherty's injunction.

The petition was set for hearing before Justice Bailey next Saturday. The petition asserted the only knowledge the plaintiffs had of the provisions of the Chicago injunction had been gained from newspaper reports. On the basis of this information, they averred the injunction was "issued without authority of law" and was without effect in the District of Columbia.

LEADERS OF STRIKE SEEKING SEPARATE RAIL AGREEMENTS

Policy Committee Called to "Very Important" Meeting Next Monday.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—With the railway shopmen's Policy Committee of ninety summoned to meet in Chicago next Monday, hopes of an early or partial settlement of the rail strike were renewed today for the first time since railroad executives and union chiefs broke off peace negotiations in New York.

These hopes were founded principally on statements by strike leaders of the possibility of separate agreements with fifty-two of the Class I roads, representing approximately $5,000 miles, or about one-third of the country's mileage.

The call informed the general chairmen that the meeting was "very important." Incidentally it will be held on the same day which Judge Wilkeson set for hearing the Government's application to make the Daugherty injunction permanent.

Officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, of which Daniel Willard is President, and which is included in the group of roads from which strike leaders hope to obtain separate agreements, denied knowledge of any conference with the strike leaders.

Railroad executives also generally either denied that peace overtures had been considered in conferences with union leaders or declined to comment upon rumors of an impending settlement. Some insisted the strike was broken and that peace negotiations had ended with the break up of the New York conferences.

The call for the Policy Committee meeting issued at Chicago strike headquarters by John Scott, Secretary of the railway employees department of the American Federation of Labor, went out by telegraph to the general chairmen of the shopcraft organizations over the name of R. M. Jewell, head of the department, whose whereabouts had remained publicly unknown since the Government's strike injunction was granted to Attorney General Daugherty last Friday. Mr. Jewell is now reported to be on route to Chicago.

DETECTIVE SHOTS GIRL WHO SAYS 'NO,' THEN KILLS SELF

Woman Who Jilted Policeman Will Recover From Two Wounds.

SHE IS SAID TO BE WED.

"You'll Never Marry Any One Else," Officer Cried, Pulling Trigger.

Acting Detective Sergt. Alfred G. Blass, thirty-nine and independently wealthy, who was attached to the East 35th Street Station, in dead to-day in Knickerbocker Hospital from a bullet he fired into his temple, and Miss Dorothy Bright, twenty-six, a beautiful blond model, who is said to be married, in recovering in the same institution from two bullet wounds inflicted by the detective, whom she had spurned.

The double shooting occurred at 8 o'clock last night in the apartment occupied by the young woman on the ground floor of No. 3131 Broadway. Blass' address is given officially as No. 256 Elna Street, Brooklyn, but he had been occupying a furnished room in an apartment on the top floor of the house in which the shooting took place.

Blass and Miss Bright, who is employed by Samuel Laddon at No. 52 West 38th Street, had been keeping company for about seven months, it was said by friends of both, but recently another man was seen frequently in the company of the pretty blonde, and Blass had been seen with her less frequently.

The girl occupied an apartment with Mrs. Madeline Elwood and Mrs. Helen Carlin. About a month ago Blass asked Miss Bright to marry him, offering to resign from the force and go to California, but she refused. Tuesday night he went to the apartment and played cards for several hours, leaving in good spirits.

Police officers in the department were shocked by the news of the shooting. Blass was extremely well liked. He was known as the best dresser in the department. Several years ago his father, who owned and operated a business in Manhattan and Brooklyn, was found dead in the hallway of a tenement house he owned on the east side. It was believed at the time that he either had been the victim of hold-up men or had fallen down the stairs. Death resulted from a fractured skull.

Blass, his brother and his sister divided the large estate and shortly afterward the detective resigned from the Police Department and entered into a partnership with Al Cohn in a detective agency. This ended disastrously, and Blass re-entered the Police Department. He has been a policeman seventeen years altogether.

Blass had been noticed brooding considerably during the past week or two and yesterday morning was discovered seated in Yorkville Court with his head in his hands. A brother officer spoke to him, but received no response.

Carolyn Shuster, 17, Daughter Of H. Morgan Shuster, President Of Century, Elopes in Kentucky

Young Man in the Case Is William Morris Whose Father Owns a Department Store in Glasgow That State.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 7.—Police to-day received a call from Glasgow, Ky., asking them to make search for Carolyn Shuster, seventeen-year-old daughter of W. Morgan Shuster, President of the Century Publishing Company of New York. She disappeared last night about 9 o'clock and is believed to have eloped with William Morris, thirty, son of a department store proprietor of Glasgow.

She was to leave to-day with her mother, Mrs. Pearl Trigg, Shuster, for New York, where she was to enter the Bard School at Morris town. Mother offers $100 reward if caught before marriage.

Carolyn Shuster is the oldest daughter of W. Morgan Shuster, and since childhood has had an intimate view of the spectacular events in which her father figured.

Following his brilliant administration of the office of Collector of Customs at Manila, when he appointed official graft and incompetence, and his subsequent activity as Secretary of Public Instruction, in which capacity he was actually headmaster to several million brown, yellow and tan school children, Mr. Shuster returned to this country to establish a law office in Washington.

At this time the Persian Government, which after a revolution against preceding centuries of corruption, had been established on a constitutional basis, asked President Taft to recommend a man who knew the ways of government and had a head for finance who could be trusted to put the country on a sound basis.

Mr. Shuster got the recommendation and soon established as Treasurer-General at Teheran. In this capacity he was practically ruler of the country.

Mr. Shuster speedily readjusted Persian's finances and soon had her on the road to economic recovery. However, Russia objected to American influence in a country she was seeking to dominate. She declared war on Persia and demanded Shuster's dismissal. The Persian Government was advised by England to submit, but the people, who had become adherents of the American, rebelled and threatened civil war.

To prevent suffering and bloodshed, Mr. Shuster resigned. On his return to this country he was given a great public reception.

During the period of Russian pressure, Mr. Shuster lived in hourly peril of assassination. His family and he were practically prisoners in a magnificent palace in Alegh Park. Carolyn Shuster and her mother and sister experienced all the thrills of the exciting period, which culminated in their escort from Persia under Russian guard in the midst of a snowstorm in which their automobile, the only one in Persia, broke down, and they were compelled to spend three nights in foul, crowded and cold caravans.

Mrs. Shuster was formerly Miss Pearl Trigg of Glasgow, Ky., whom she was when the reported elopement of Carolyn took place.

At the offices of the Century magazine it was said Mr. Shuster was not at the office to-day and his secretary had heard nothing of his daughter's reported elopement.

CHILDREN MADE CRITICALLY ILL BY EATING PARK NUTS

Two boys are dying in Lincoln Hospital, three others, one of them two years old are in a serious condition in the same institution, and four others, one of them a girl of five, are all at their homes in the Bronx's Little Italy to-day after having eaten poisonous fruit used as a toothache cure in Italy causes delirium.

The nine children were stricken almost immediately after eating the nuts. Physicians said that the poison attacked their intestines and large blotches appeared on their bodies, following which delirium set in. In one instance the father of one of the boys saved his life by administering an emetic.

The two boys who are believed to be dying are John Nitello, five, and his brother Armando, seven, of No. 235 East 15th Street.

The other three in the hospital are Patsy Russo, five, Vincent Caruso, two and a half, and Louis Procto, also of No. 235 East 15th Street.

Those at home are Alfred Guardello, eight, No. 232 East 15th Street; Joseph De Russo, five, No. 222 East 15th Street; John Spino, five, No. 221 East 15th Street; and Anna Cappuli, five, No. 231 East 15th Street.

One of the children went for a walk yesterday afternoon in Franks Sidel Park and came across a tree from which were dropping hundreds of nuts. The nuts were the shape of a bean and were covered with a bitter shell. Parents of the victims later said those were used in Italy as a toothache remedy and were known to be poisonous.

The boy filled his pockets with the nuts and carried them back to his playmates, to whom he passed them out and a feast was enjoyed.

About an hour afterward several of the children became violently ill, the pupils of their eyes becoming widely dilated and their bodies becoming covered with deep red blotches. George Guardello, father of Alfred, recognized the symptoms from his experience with the nut in Italy and administered an emetic to his son. Physicians said later he had saved his son's life by so doing, as the boy had eaten a larger number of the nuts than had the others.

Policeman Peter Talty of the Morrisania Station sent a call to Lincoln Hospital and Dr. Fleischman rushed the five most dangerously ill to that institution. Dr. Fleischman described the ailment as atrophic poisoning.

Little Italy is widely excited to-day over the visitation of the malady. Mothers are frantically examining their children for traces of its symptoms and physicians of the neighborhood are being given little rest.

One of the nuts will be sent today to Fordham Hospital for analysis and it was said that preventive measures will be taken by officials of the Park Department to keep them from children hereafter.

Two policemen cruising about Long Island Sound in a Marine Division launch this morning captured a rum-running schooner, arrested five men who said it and seized $60,000 worth of whiskey which apparently was being smuggled into New York.

Patrolmen Gross and Toombs of the Marine Division were in the launch off City Island when they sighted the schooner, a 60-foot two-masted schooner of the yacht type. Something about the rigging of the vessel and the manner of the men aboard aroused their suspicions, and they followed.

Off Fort Morris the policemen halted the schooner and clambered aboard. They found 600 cases of whiskey, mostly Scotch, valued at $100 a case, aboard her and placed under arrest the five men on the vessel. They described themselves as Michael Anderson, a sailor, of No. 111 Pioneer Street, Brooklyn; Sever Peterson, a cook, of No. 324 40th Street, Brooklyn; Andrew Saybrook, an engineer, of No. 25 South Street; Julius Ringard, a sailor, of No. 25 South Street; and William Ackerman of No. 1611 Park Avenue.

The prisoners were taken to the Morrisania Police Station. They refused to tell where they got the whiskey, which bore the mark "Montreal," to whom it was consigned, or who owned the vessel. However, in the cabin of the ship the police found papers showing that the registry number of the boat is 85296 and that she belongs to one C. L. Davenport of Boston, which is her home port.

Capt. Skehan of the Marine Division of the Police Department with six men conveyed the schooner to Harbor A with the police boat Manhattan. The 600 cases of whiskey were taken into the police station.

Magistrate Douglas held the five prisoners in $1,000 bail for a hearing Sept. 13, when they were arraigned in Morrisania Court.

Joseph De Salva, forty-five, of No. 10 Leroy Street, and Edward Krueger, fifty-six, of No. 237 West 21st Street, watchmen at the Republic Storage Warehouse at No. 511 West 31st Street, and Jack Ranzman, twenty-eight, of No. 308 West 161st Street, a chauffeur employed by a man named Edelstein at the Harlem Market, were arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court this morning, charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of $30,000 worth of liquor from the warehouse Tuesday night.

Woman Arrested Blames Husband for Supply of Alcohol Found in Early Morning Search.

Two More Victims Succumb This Morning to Deadly Liquor Being Sold in the Red Hook Section.

Following the death of two more victims of wood alcohol poisoning in the Red Hook district of Brooklyn to-day, District Attorney Ruston, his assistants, Wilson and Snyder, and Police Captain Connors of the Hamilton Avenue Station, began at 4 o'clock this morning a determined house-to-house search along Conover Street where they had heard that Martin Connolly, a printer, and his brother-in-law, Thomas Padden, had bought the whiskey which made them the tenth and eleventh to have died of poison hooch since Labor Day in that neighborhood.

They had searched three houses, including a grocery store at No. 113 Conover Street, without result by 5 o'clock. A red-headed woman was sweeping the sidewalk. One of the raiders remembered that a member of Padden's family had said there was a red-headed woman at the place where they bought the liquor which killed them.

The woman told Mr. Ruston she was Margaret Burns and lived in a second floor apartment. Her husband always locked her out when he left the house, she said, and she had to visit around with neighbors until he came home.

The raiding party entered the apartment by way of the fire escape. They found two bottles of strong hooch in a kitchen. In another room they found a padlocked chest which they forced open. It contained two demijohns holding two gallons each and seventeen quart bottles and a quantity of flavoring extracts and coloring liquids.

The Burns woman said her husband was Tony Pollazolo, a longshoreman, but that she always kept her maiden name. She was not able to tell the police where to find her husband. She was locked up charged with having liquor in her possession.

Mr. Ruston and his party continued their search, going through coat closets, soda water stands, candy stores and grocery stores. They found no more hooch but heard of two strangers who had been peddling what purported to be grain alcohol in gallon cans in the last two days.

Anthony De Janaro was removed to Kings County Hospital at noon to-day from his home, No. 240 Van Bunt Street, in the Red Hook district. He was suffering from wood alcohol poisoning and is in a critical condition. He said he had bought liquor in a house in Conover Street.

Besides the eleven deaths in Brooklyn the death of John Mayzysky of No. 49 Essex Street was reported by Bellevue Hospital as due to alcoholic poisoning. Mayzysky was transferred to Bellevue from the Tombs Prison Sept. 4.

Dr. Lichtenstein, the Tombs physician, said he thought Mayzysky was suffering from some of the crude hooch he distilled and sold and for which he had been sent to the Tombs by Magistrate Cobb, Sept. 2, to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Connolly was employed on a New York newspaper, and, becoming ill last night, started home. His eyesight suddenly became so bad he stopped in a hospital for temporary treatment. When he reached home he called in the family physician, Dr. Thomas F. Patterson, No. 128 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn. While the doctor was treating him his brother-in-law, Pauline, came in and, thinking Connolly's illness was not serious, began pouring hooch.

"He all off, Martin," he said, "I want you to drink, good hooch."

When Dr. Patterson left Connolly he seemed to be improved, but died
